I think that we should preserve the community and what's been built as much as we can. Instead of destroying what has been created, we can add on to what we have here to better our community, specifically the younger generation.

I think the new Walton Park should have a renovated pool - with enough open public hours for the community. The Park should also have other facilities (recreational courts, basketball or similar).

Why is this survey so confusing & presumptive?
Is the city truly invested in the well being of the community, or is it seizing an opportunity to further gentrify Southside? I don't think the city really cares. Put the money toward what the community really wants & needs.
